DETAILED ACTION

This application is a 371 of PCT/US00/26504.

The preliminary amendment filed on August 7, 2002, amending claims 25, 32, 38 and 410, has been entered. Dissuade

Claims 1-41 are pending.

Election/Restrictions

Restriction is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 and 372.

This application contains the following inventions or groups of inventions which are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

In accordance with 37 CFR 1.499, applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single invention to which the claims must be restricted.

Group I, claim(s) 1-31, 35-37 and 41, drawn to a radiation resistant bacterium.

Group II, claim(s) 32-34 and 38-40, drawn to a method of bioremediation using a radiation resistant bacterium.

Applicants are required to elect ONE strain of bacterium detoxifying at least one or two toxin expressing ONE heterologous protein.

This is not an election of species. Each bacterium is an independent chemical entity and requires independent search in the patent and non-patent literature. Also, the heterologous proteins recited in claim 12 expressed in the bacterium is an independent chemical entity and requires independent search in the patent and non-patent literature. The proteins also have different enzymatic activity and unrelated structure.

Art Unit: 1652

The inventions listed as Groups I-II do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, they lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons:

The technical feature linking Groups I-II appears to be that they all relate to a radiation resistant bacterium engineered to detoxify at least one toxin.

However, Kindl (form PTO-1449 – Naturforsch. C 52, 1997:1-8) teach that a lipoxygenase from Cucumis sativus initiates lipid metabolism (abstract). The nucleic acid sequence encoding the lipoxygenase is 100% identical to SEQ ID NO:1.

Lange et al. (form PTO-1449) discloses a radiation resistant bacterium engineered to detoxify at least one toxin (abstract).

Therefore, the technical feature linking the inventions of Groups I-II does not constitute a special technical feature as defined by PCT Rule 13.2, as it does not define a contribution over the prior art.

The special technical feature of Group I is a radiation resistant bacterium.

The special technical feature of Group II is drawn to a method of bioremediation using a radiation resistant bacterium.

Accordingly, Groups I-II are not so linked by the same or a corresponding special technical feature as to form a single general inventive concept.

This application contains claims directed to more than one species of the generic invention. These species are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

Art Unit: 1652

The species are as follows:

A) toxins, B) radionuclides, C) heavy metals, D) organic compounds

Applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single species to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. The reply must also identify the claims readable on the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered non-responsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

The claims are deemed to correspond to the species listed above in the following manner:

Claims 4, 11, 16 and 23: species of toxins

Claims 5 and 17: species of radionuclides

Claim 6 and 18: species of heavy metal

Claims 7-10 and 19-22: species of organic compound

The following claim(s) are generic: claims 1-3, 12-15, 25-28, 32-34, and 41.

The species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: the toxins recited in the claims have different structure and function. The radionuclides recited in the claims have different structure and function. The heavy metals recited in the claims have different structure and function. The organic compounds have different structure and function.

Art Unit: 1652

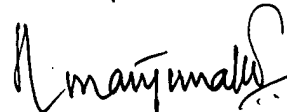

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
